What is a Bursar?
Bursar is a Latin term meaning "official in charge of funds" or "keeper of the purse". At Emory University, the Office of the Bursar provides billing, collection and servicing for over 17,000 student, healthcare and miscellaneous accounts. The primary goal of the Office of the Bursar is to provide quality service to the Emory community and its constituencies.

The office consists of:
• Student Financial Services, which includes all aspects of student accounting and loan servicing;
• Cashiering, which receives all checks, cash and credit cards payable to the University and deposits these funds to the appropriate bank accounts;
• Data Operations, which oversees computer processing and reporting for our billing and receivables system;
• Bursar Accounting whose responsibility is to provide fiscal information to the University's financial accounting system and ad hoc reporting to other departments; and
• General Accounts Receivable, which provides a billing service for other departments within the Emory community.
